CAMELLIA CATALOG

1950-1951

Bayou Lacombe

FOREWORD

The BAYOU GARDENS NURSERIES are devoted exclusively to the raising of CAMELLIAS and SASANQUAS. It has been found that Camellia culture is a science in itself and the production of strong, healthy Camellias and Sasanquas leaves no time to devote to the raising of other shrubs and ornamentals.

The Nurseries contain many Camellias and Sasanquas on their own roots, but this catalog lists only GRAFTED PLANTS.

Grafted Camellias vary in value in proportion to the size of the understock. Grafts on small, young understock are not as desirable or valuable although cheaper, as those on larger, older understock. All of our grafts are field grown and none are shipped on understock under three years old, and on most of our grafts the understock is much older.

Only healthy, vigorous stock is shipped, but there is no guarantee that plants will live, as that depends upon conditions beyond our control.

Experience shows that occasionally grafted Camellias do not bloom true in color. Grafted plants from scions of solid varieties sometimes show white, and vice versa. This is beyond the control of the nurseryman and we guarantee the scion as to variety only.

We strongly urge those unfamiliar with Camellia culture to study some of the standard, authoritative works on the subject, or to employ some experienced person, before planting, as location and soil preparation are essential to healthy growth. Camellias are valuable plants and their value increases yearly. Give them the intelligent care and attention they deserve.

On some of the newer varieties our stock is necessarily limited. These plants will be sold as long as the supply lasts. Sometimes we are out of the particular SIZE graft ordered. It has been our practice in such cases to substitute the next smaller or larger size in the variety specified, and make the necessary price adjustment. We have never received a single complaint in this regard.

SASANQUAS

Each year the SASANQUAS gain in justly deserved public esteem and popularity. These heavy blooming relatives of the CAMELLIAS give the garden an early riot of color just before the Camellias come in bloom. While the Bayou Gardens Nurseries contain many Sasanqua varieties on their own roots, the following rare and beautiful varieties are offered this season in choice one year grafts:

BAYOU GARDENS

Bayou Gardens is one of the outstanding beauty spots of South Louisiana. Each year hundreds of visitors enjoy the quiet charm of this typical bayou country setting enhanced by the profuse plantings of Camellias, Sasanquas, Azaleas and other ornamentals. It is situated on the banks of Bayou Lacombe in St. Tammany Parish on the north shore of Lake Pontchartrain. St. Tammany Parish has long been noted for its natural beauty and its famous Ozone Belt, and the Bayou Lacombe section is the ancient home of a branch of the Choctaw Indians, and the location of Father Rouquette's early missions to that tribe.

During the Camellia blooming season the rare and magnificent flowers of some four hundred varieties can be seen, and many customers of the Nurseries make their plant selections at this time, while visiting the Gardens. The Nurseries are located in the rear of the Gardens and experts are available to assist in the choice of plants and to prepare and load same.
